Staff

The Institute of Cancer Research, London, employed 1,101 staff at the beginning of the 2019/20 academic year.

The ICR is based at two locations in London – at Sutton and Chelsea. Around 64 per cent of staff work in Sutton and 35 per cent in Chelsea, with 1% not site based.

In 2019/20 we employed 29 scientific officers – technical staff who support research activities and work primarily in laboratories.

Almost 72 per cent of staff members were employed in research and 28 per cent were employed in corporate services.

Leadership Team

The ICR's leadership team consists of Professor Paul Workman, Chief Executive and President, Gordon Stewart, Chief Operating Officer, and Professor Clare Isacke, Dean of Academic and Research Affairs.

We employed 22 clinical academic staff, who, as medically trained professionals, combine research with clinical duties.

Some 59 per cent of staff at the The Institute of Cancer Research (ICR) are female, and 41 per cent male. We are a diverse organisation, with 30 per cent of

In 2019/20, we employed 50 scientific academic staff, comprising academic and staff scientist roles. Of these, 14 were Team Leaders.

Specialist staff – including bioinformaticians, statisticians and epidemiologists – accounted for around 13 staff, working across research divisions.
